Introduction

A Christian Funeral is a liturgical act; it is part of the public worship of the Church. It has a structure that has to be observed. Within this structure, there are places where choices have to be made, particularly with regard to the selection of prayers, readings and music. These choices cannot be determined solely by personal tastes and preferences. The fact that they are part of a liturgical celebration means that they have to satisfy certain criteria.

Music is an integral part of the funeral rites. It expresses our faith in the Paschal Mystery: the Life, Death and Resurrection of Jesus. As the music for the liturgy can evoke strong feelings, it should be chosen with care. It should support and console the mourners and strengthen the faith of the assembly.

The following sections will outline the structure of the funeral liturgies, describe the places where choices can be made, and discuss the restrictions that apply. Working with the music ministers and copyright will also be covered.

The Theology of the Funeral Liturgies

The Funeral Rites mark the transition from the earthly life to eternal life. They are not a celebration of the life and achievements of the deceased. The life of the deceased can be commemorated at the Vigil.

The Structure of the Rites and the Place of Music

The Order of Christian Funerals includes three public rites, the structures of which are given below. The parts of the ceremonies marked with 🎵 are the parts where there can be singing or instrumental music. Optional rites are shown in square brackets. We will consider each of these in the next section.

Four public rites in the Order of Christian Funerals are:

- (1) The Vigil for the Deceased;
- (2) The Funeral Mass;
- (3) Funeral Liturgy outside Mass;
- (4) The Rite of Committal.

These outlines of the rites describe a typical arrangement. There are a number of variations and additional rites that may also be used. The Vigil for the Deceased may be celebrated in the form of some part of the Office for the Dead, for example, Morning Prayer or Evening Prayer. These involve hymns, psalms and canticles, all of which should be sung. The Funeral Liturgy may take the form of a Funeral Mass or as a Funeral Liturgy Outside Mass. A Funeral Liturgy Outside Mass includes all the parts of the Funeral Mass except the Liturgy of the Eucharist.

Choosing suitable music for the Funeral Liturgies

It will be necessary to choose songs to be sung at various stages of the rites. The words of the songs that are chosen need to reflect the values and beliefs of the Church, in particular, the belief in life after death and the hope of resurrection.

A list of appropriate songs for the various funeral rites begins on page 15.

Psalms are particularly appropriate in the funeral rites because they “powerfully express the suffering and pain, the hope and the trust of people of every age and culture. Above all the psalms sing of faith in God, of revelation and redemption.” (Order of Christian Funerals #25)

The Responsorial Psalm and the Gospel Acclamation should be settings of the texts in the Lectionary or in the Order of Christian Funerals. The Responsorial Psalm should not be replaced by some other song.

A list of appropriate Responsorial Psalm settings begins on page 19. The settings are not difficult to sing and also correspond to the texts in the Lectionary.

“Liturgical services are not private functions, but are celebrations belonging to the Church, which is the Sacrament of unity, namely, the holy people united and ordered under their bishops.” (Vatican II, Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy #26) Therefore, renditions of popular songs or pieces from operas are not suitable. The use of recorded music should be avoided.

The Vigil may be held in the church, at the home of the deceased or in the funeral parlour. It may take the form of a Liturgy of the Word. The parts of the Vigil that may be sung are: (1) the Opening Song; (2) the Responsorial Psalm; (3) the Litany; and (4) the Lord's Prayer. There may also be a song after the final blessing.

- The Responsorial Psalm should be sung by a Psalmist with the people joining in the response.
- The Litany may be sung by a Cantor with the people joining in the response.
- The Lord's Prayer may be sung. The use of the plainchant setting is recommended.
- The final song is sung by all and should have a liturgical character.

It is customary in Australia to recite the Rosary as part of the Vigil Prayers for the person who has died. To this end, the Centre for Liturgy has published two templates. The first is one which is led by a priest or deacon. In case a priest or deacon is not available for these vigil prayers a template has been prepared so that a lay person can lead the vigil prayers (which include the recitation of the rosary).

Procession to the Place of Committal 🎵

The Funeral Mass is normally held in the parish church. The parts of the Funeral Mass that may be sung are:

- (1) the Entrance Song;
- (2) the Responsorial Psalm;
- (3) the Gospel Acclamation;
- (4) the Holy, Holy, Holy;
- (5) the Memorial Acclamation;
- (6) the Great Amen;
- (7) the Lord's Prayer;
- (8) the Lamb of God;
- (9) the Communion Song; and
- (10) the Song of Farewell.

There may also be songs during the Procession with the Gifts, during the procession out of the church and/or during the Procession to the Place of Committal.

The Entrance Song is sung by all while the coffin moves from the door of the church to the sanctuary. A song with verses sung by the Cantor or choir and a response sung by all may be chosen to make it easier for the assembly to join in.

The Responsorial Psalm should be sung by a Psalmist with the people joining in the response.

The Gospel Acclamation should be sung.

Instrumental music or a song may accompany the procession with the gifts.

The Acclamations during the Eucharistic Prayer (Holy, Holy, Holy; Memorial Acclamation; Great Amen) should be sung. There are many Mass settings that can be used for these acclamations. It is recommended that all the acclamations be taken from the same Mass setting, preferably one that is familiar to the assembly.

The Lord's Prayer may be sung. The use of the plainchant setting is recommended.

The Lamb of God may be sung. It can be taken from the same Mass setting as the acclamations during the Eucharistic Prayer.

The Communion Song is sung while people are going to Communion. The use of a song with a simple response is recommended.

The Communion Song begins when the celebrant takes communion and continues while communion is distributed. It is an expression the unity and the joy of the community as it shares the Body and Blood of Christ. The use of a song with a simple response is recommended.

(Hymns to Mary should not be sung during Communion. Whilst it is very common to have Schubert's Ave Maria sung at funerals, it is appropriate and liturgically correct to sing this motet during the Presentation and Preparation of the Gifts, not during the distribution of Holy Communion.

The Song of Farewell is the climax of the final commendation. It is sung by all before, during or after the incensing of the coffin and the sprinkling with holy water. A song with a simple response or a well-known hymn may be used. Music suggestions for this part of the rite are given on page 18.

A song may be sung while the coffin is moved out of the church. The words of this song should reflect the themes of hope and consolation that inspire the whole ceremony.

A song may be sung at the end of the rite, after the prayer over the people.

If there is to be a cremation instead of a burial, some of the rites can take place at the crematorium. If there is a Funeral Liturgy in church, then the Rite of Committal may take place in the crematorium. Otherwise, the Funeral Liturgy Outside Mass described in the section above may take place at the crematorium. Rites celebrated at the crematorium are liturgical acts and the songs chosen should reflect Christian beliefs in the same way as songs chosen for rites that take place in church.

Working with the Music Ministers

There is a range of possibilities regarding the music ministers. They can range from a solo organist to an organist and cantor to a full choir. You will need to meet with the organist, cantor or choir director before the funeral to choose the music. If necessary, they will be able to make suggestions regarding appropriate pieces of music and give you a selection to choose from. They will also be able to advise you on copyright matters.

Copyright

If you decide to produce a funeral booklet or a PowerPoint presentation, you need to observe the requirements of the law regarding copyright. The texts of the Mass and funeral rites are copyright, and this should be acknowledged in the booklet. If you want to reproduce the words of the songs, you may need to obtain a license to do so. The music ministers will advise you on where and how to apply for a copyright license. The licensing agency for songs is OneLicense (www.onelicense.net).
